To The Wolfe Pack
Ruth Wilson Room 822
Assembly Station
New York, New York

Gentlemen:

As London's Baker Street is remembered as the home of Sherlock Holmes, so is a townhouse, complete with greenhouse, on Manhattan's West 135th Street, cherished in the hearts of devotees of the great detective, New York City's two brilliant and accessible Nero Wolfe.

As the 50th anniversary of the publication of Exp-De-clare, the first of two great detective novels and 30 short stories to characterize the Wolfe's cases approaches, I salute the officials and members of The Wolfe Pack who, loyally and zealously, strive to perpetuate the most highly regarded fame of Wolfe and his gifted creator.

With regards to everyone,

Sincerely,

Edward T. Koch
Mayor
