

Nero Wolfe Trenton's Native Son?

Detective Nero Wolfe modestly referred to himself as “merely a genius.” Others have described him as a gourmet, orchid enthusiast, Trentonian.

Trentonian? Mr. Wolfe took great pride in his Montenegrin roots but was evasive as to the place of his actual birth. Was he born in the shadow of the Black Mountain or was T-Town the city of his birth?

Weaving through the twists and turns of Rex Stout's 72 Nero Wolfe books and short stories, Jean Quinn, editor of The Gazette: Journal of the Wolfe Pack, presents a compelling argument for Mr. Wolfe as Trenton's native son.

Please join us for this exploration of the mysteries of Nero Wolfe's birth.

Saturday, April 14 at 12 noon

Classics Used and Rare Books
117 South Warren Street
Trenton, NJ 08608
(609) 394-8400

Questions? For directions, please call Classics.
For information on The Wolfe Pack, log on to www.nerowolfe.org or email (please do not “contact”)
LonCohen@nerowolfe.org

- ➔ Refreshments served.
- ➔ Free copies of The Gazette.
- ➔ Rex Stout books for sale.