

OLD METHODIST CHURCH, NOBLESVILLE

FLOYD D. HOPPER

The old Methodist Church, demolished in 1964, when the congregation moved to its new location, was the third brick structure on this site at Tenth and Clinton streets. It was built in 1891, at a cost of $20,000.00, and was modern in every particular.

REX STOUT BIRTHPLACE, NOBLESVILLE

STEVE MILLE

Rex Stout, author of the famous "Nero Wolfe" detective stories, was born in this house in 1886. Built by Daniel Craycraft in 1875, and extensively remodeled during the years, it is still standing in good repair at 1151 Cherry Street, Noblesville.

REX STOUT HIGH MEADOW BREWSTER NEW YORK 10508

October 25 1969

Dear Mrs. Miller:

My daughter asked, "What are you beaming about?" and I said, "Get a whole page of a calendar given to a picture of the house you were born in and you'll beam." Now the whole month of May belongs to me, and I have documentary evidence.

My wife and I need 25 copies of the calendar - if you can spare that many. $25 of the enclosed check is for them, and the other $40 is for my friendly contribution to the Artists Association and the Historical Society. Not necessarily half-and-half; if one of them needs it more than the other divide it as you think best.

Please thank Steve Miller for me.

Cordially,

THE LETTER ABOVE tells the story. Famous author Rex Stout sends a check for calendars and a contribution to the county's Artists and Historical Associations. Recipient was Mrs. Irene Miller, who sent him a copy of the calendar containing a drawing of the home in which Stout was born. It was painted by Steve Miller.

Drawings by the Millers (no relation) and other Hamilton County artists are currently on display at the 18th annual fall exhibit of their Association. Tomorrow is the last day of the show in the old brick house on the southwest corner of 8th St. and Maple Ave., across from the Houston Hotel. Hours are noon to 8 p.m.
